1383s - The Archivist, for July county fair, loaned 14 negatives from this set to Jackson Business Association, to print enlargements for exhibit in booth. As condition of use, parties agreed that photos would be property of the museum-archives. Because the JBA spent considerable money printing and mounting photos, some members believed the photos should belong to them. As a compromise, the archivist suggested that, though the museum would own the photos, the JBA would have the privilege of showing them at selected locations in the city. Any museum exhibit will credit the JBA for funding the display.
